ANNUAL RELAY CARNIVAL WILL BE ATTRACTION

Twelve Pacific Coast Colleges Will Compete for Honors at the Yearly Carnival.

(By Associated Press) SEATTLE, April 13.—Twelve Pacific coast universities and colleges have already accepted invitations to participate in the University of Washington's third annual relay carnival, to be held at the stadium here April 29. A number of others are expected to enter. The schools that have already placed men in the entry list are Oregon Agricultural college, University of Oregon, Washington State college, Occidental college, University of Idaho, University of Montana, Montana Wesleyan college, Pacific university, College of Puget Sound, Redlands university, Gonzaga university and the University of British Columbia.

The University of California has definitely declined to participate and it is believed the University of southern California will not be represented. Stanford and Willamette universities and Whitman college are expected to enter later.

The meet, it has been announced, will be divided into two classes, the "A" division including all schools, members of the Pacific coast or the Northwest conferences, having more than 250 students. The "B" division will include all schools not members of either of the two conferences.

Events in the class "A" will be the half mile, one mile, two mile and four mile relays and some special events including the 100-yard dash and the pentathlon. Class "B" events will include the one mile relay and the special 100-yard dash. Every effort will be made to place the stadium track and field in the best condition possible for the carnival.

Wireless Calls When Dinner Is Ready

Good-bye to the well-known dinner bell on American farms. Wireless calls instead. He also receives market reports and current news of the day as he keeps busy at his work.

ENTERTAINMENT OF DELEGATES

Princely Hospitality of City Contains Superb Palaces of Sixteenth Century.

(By Associated Press) ROME, April 13.—It is difficult to imagine a city better adapted to princely hospitality than Genoa, where the great economic conference began Monday, for it contains the superb palaces built mostly during the sixteenth century to satisfy the sense of luxury, the appreciation of art and beauty of the merchant princes of Genoa.

There are no palaces in Italy, perhaps in the whole world, so magnificent in themselves and that form such a suitable background for the treasures of art, the Van Dycks, the Rubens and the delightful pictures of the Venetian school that adorn their walls.

The royal palace where the conference is held, in addition to its sumptuous furniture, its glorious marble staircase and balconies, has a beautiful garden with green lawns and walks shaded by a variety of trees and shrubs.

The members of the different delegations aggregate at least 2000 persons, who are lodged in Genoa's palaces and in the lovely villas that surround the town. When one realizes that all this beauty is bathed in the sunshine of an Italian spring, it is difficult to imagine a better preparation for the comfort and the pleasure of Italy's guests.

In addition Italy has exerted herself to provide for the conveniences of life needed by those who attend the conference. The road along the Ligurian Riviera has been relaid for a distance of about 25 miles. Additional telephone and telegraph circuits have been constructed and a special telephone line has been set up for the service of the delegations and newspaper correspondents. Reading and writing rooms also have been prepared for delegations and reporters.

A largely increased postal service has been provided, while in the Palazzo palace where the press has its headquarters, there are all possible conveniences for reading, writing, sending telegrams, phonographs, a magnificent club house with splendid salons and a buffet, one or two rooms of which are furnished with tables and chairs ordered by Cardinal Ratti for the Archbishop's palace before he left Milan last February to be elected Pope, Pius XI.

WICHITA DAILY HALF CENTURY
OLD THIS DAY

Only Brief Editorial Mention Is Made of Significance of Passing Event.

(By Associated Press) WICHITA, April 13.—The Wichita Daily Eagle is 50 years old today. The half-century mark is passed quietly by The Eagle, with only a brief editorial mention of the significance of the date, and a miniature reproduction of the first page of the paper that was printed half a century ago.

Colonel Marsh Murdock unloaded a hand press and some type from a wagon at what is now the center of Main and Second streets, in a little outpost called Wichita, in April, 1879. At once he went to work with his type, and on the morning of the twelfth he produced the first copy of The Eagle, which was called, out of deference to the future greatness of Wichita, "The Wichita City Eagle." The "City" was dropped when Wichita actually became a town.

Victor Murdock, afterwards congressman from his district and at present a member of the federal trade commission and editor-in-chief of The Eagle, was a baby when the first copy of The Eagle was struck off, and Marcellus M. Murdock, his brother, the present publisher, was not born.

The Eagle continued as a weekly until 1884, when it appeared as a daily. Marsh Murdock edited the paper until his death in 1908. During most of the early history of The Eagle, Roland P. Murdock, a brother of Colonel Marsh, was a partner in the business. Upon the death of the elder Murdock the paper passed into the ownership of his widow, Victoria Murdock, and for six years, until her death, her name was carried as publisher. The will of Mrs. Murdock left the paper to a trust owned by her three children, Victor and Marcellus M. Murdock and Mrs. Pearl Murdock Eaton. The ownership remains the same today.

The paper has had the Associated Press service since 1895 and the Associated Press leased wire since 1901.

Wichita has grown from a population of a few score traders to a population of about 80,000, and the circulation of the paper has more than kept pace.

COLLECTORS THWART LOOT OIL STATIONS

(By Associated Press) SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Robbers looting Standard Oil service stations in the future will find a very small amount of cash on hand, according to officials of the company here. Due to the recent increase in thefts from the company's stations along the coast, collections are now taken up more frequently than heretofore, and are made by a collector accompanied by armed guards.

A standing reward of $100 has been placed by the Standard Oil for the arrest and conviction of anyone robbing a company station.

Police in Los Angeles recently killed a man who had robbed a service station there.

NOTICE TO WATER CUSTOMERS

All persons having gardens or lawns and desiring to take advantage of the special rate authorized by the public service commission should make application to the water company in writing on or before April 24th. The rate is applicable between April 24th and October 24th. (Signed) WATER COMPANY OF TONOPAH. A5-104.
